Soccer Facts...and Fiction!

Since the Soccer World Cup is around the corner, I and my brother decided to take a trip to the stadium in our city. My brother is a quicksilver character, but he doesn't admit it.

I was driving and I had to focus as our car was by winding down a zig-zag path. Seemed for every one turn to one side, there were two turns to the opposite side. I decided to play a game of proper nouns with him.

- Italy has played the final in a soccer world cup six times.
- A Uruguayan referee officiated the famous world cup clash between the host country and their communist neighbors in the tenth edition of the world cup in 1974.
- Five goals were scored by one single Russian player in a game at the 1994 world cup.
- Ademir top scored in the 1950 world cup with eight goals.
- Fontaine scored a couple of hat tricks en route to being top scorer in the 1958 world cup.
- Argentina were eliminated in the early stages in the seventh edition of the world cup in 1962.
- Matthaus won the world cup only once as a captain.
- Deutschland have finished in bronze position or better a record eleven times.
- Kasey Keller has the record for representing our country in the most world cups. He was a part of four world cup campaigns.
- El salvador played their maiden world cup in the ninth edition in 1970.
- Maradona played in two world cup finals.

Finally we reached our destination. Oh, you do know by now what our destination is, don't ya..?
