

From: Josh Oratz

Parallel Cinemas

Max Walker goes back in time to stop his roommate from making money off the U.S. citrus market.

In Arnold's most famous role, he shouts "I'll be back after fumigating this house!"

In the long-awaited continuation of this series, Agent J and Agent K must track down an escaped criminal bent on stealing a measure of visible light.

Reggie and Jake travel back in time to try and prevent Thanksgiving, but mistakenly end up preventing Arbor Day instead

Marty McFly breaks into the mainframe and accidentally meet his parents in the past.

Wolverine travels back in time to save the world, aided by a group of superheroes who only like one true and one false value.

Aaron and Abe accidentally create a device that's capable of looping between two numbers, both of which are non-composite.

Bill Murray stars in this film where he relives the same event over and over again after it's been moved forward three months.

Meg Ryan and Hugh Jackman star in this rom-com where Jackman falls forward in time and flies a colorful winged craft on the beach.

Michael Raynor travels through a wormhole to the past, where he must stop the assassination of his mother, all while carrying a steering device.

Clark Kent spins around the Earth to turn back time, becoming rather gaunt in the process.

A teenager in Middlesex, Virginia meets a giant rabbit, who keeps urging him to mend socks.

Ted "Theodore" Logan travels with his spherical and sporty best friend to kidnap famous historical characters for use in a history presentation.

Guy Pearce stars in this sci-fi film in which he repeatedly travels forward in time, using a device he invented which spits out stock images of Shiba Inus and a guy named Brian along with formulaic joke text.

