

Cows In Space †6.79

By Drew Besse

A recent Space Storm has knocked down all the fences in the nearby Space Farm! The Space Farmer lost the blueprints for where the fences go, but remembers the following information:

- The field is split into hexagonal regions, each of which contains either an integer number of Space Cows or a barn (in which case it contains no Space Cows)
- The fences split the field into connected plots such that each plot contains exactly 15 Space Cows and one barn
- Each region is in exactly one plot
- No plot contains two regions with the same number of Space Cows

