The Hot Pot at the End of the Universe †3.89

By Eric Frackleton

It is a little known fact that Milliways, the Restaurant at the End of the Universe, has a super-secret hot pot option for exclusive clientele bearing a towel with a secret microscopic symbol. Furthermore, to encourage returning customers, Milliways periodically changes up which ingredients they'll bring to the table based upon which day of the year you've travelled from. (I hear holiday departures have the most exquisite selections, while an average day like today may result in something rather elementary.)

Luckily for me, my pal Dmitri has access to such a meal, and he offered to bring me along. Here are the raw ingredients Dmitri and I will be receiving based on our departure date from our own time. However, I do not believe it will be enough to whet our appetites. What do you recommend we order for dessert?
